CANTON PUBLISHER SHOT TO DEATH

FORMER XENIAN HELD FOR MURDER IN PHILADELPHIA

Frank Thomas, 45, Colored, Arrested In Franklin by Village Marshal—Admits Shooting Last January

Frank Thomas, 45, colored, former Xenian, was arrested in Franklin Thursday night by Marshal Graham of that village and is being held for Philadelphia police who are said to want him on a charge of murder.

Thomas, who made his home in Xenia, at 1133 E. Third St., three or four years, from 1920 to 1923 or 1924, is said to have admitted to Franklin authorities that he shot and killed William Lattimore, colored, brother of his daughter-in-law, in Philadelphia, last January.

He formerly lived in Franklin and Marshal Graham recognized him from his picture on a police circular sent out following the murder. Thomas told Marshal Graham he had skipped to Georgia after the shooting and had lived in a number of states since then. He said he was on his way to Philadelphia when arrested.

The shooting was the culmination of a family quarrel, Thomas told Franklin officers. He said he was making his home in Philadelphia at 1530 Twenty-second St., with his two sons and their wives. During the absence of his sons, he said one daughter-in-law left and returned in company with two men, one of them her brother, whom she instructed to move out the furniture.

Thomas said he did not protest until they were about to move the mattress which he had been using for a bed. When he remonstrated with them he said one of the men struck him on the head and he retaliated by shooting Lattimore. Thomas said the pistol was lying on the floor when he got it and that it had fallen there during the scuffle.

Chief of Police M. E. Graham said Friday, Thomas did not have a police record during his residence in Xenia. Philadelphia police will return him to that city.

GRAND JURY GRAFT INVESTIGATION TO RESUME NEXT WEEK

Crabbe Testifies At Session—Promises Further Action

NORWALK, O., July 16.—The Huron County grand jury's investigation of alleged graft in the state's attempt to acquire a site for the North Eastern Ohio Institution for the Feeble Minded, will be resumed next week, with land owners—holders of acreage in the New London site, rejected by the state—testifying.

The jury adjourned late yesterday until Thursday, after Attorney General C. C. Crabbe testified.

Before entering the grand jury room, Crabbe asserted that if the jury fails to act, he will take the issues involved into the federal courts.

In addition to the land owners other witnesses will be called, County Prosecutor Edgar G. Martin announced.

Another witness yesterday was State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy, who charged "those seeking to profit through acquisition of the New London site, first set the sale price at $52,000 but later reduced it to $30,000."

The charges, originally brought by Crabbe and Tracy, involve State Welfare Director John E. Sharpe, J. B. Youngblood, his consulting engineer and John T. Hogan, department agriculturist.

The association named an executive board composed of the following: E. C. Anderson, Blan-

chester; O. Fred H. Tibbits, Columbus; W. T. Huntsman, Toledo; S. A. Lovelace, London, Ky.; W. H. Ponca Logansport, Ind.; Charles F. Porter, Hagerstown, Ind., and E. W. Showalter, Brookville, Ind.

OIL BOOM HITS JAMESTOWN

Oil has been struck in Jamestown.

Road oil, 4,000 gallons of it, was released into the lawns of Homer Smith and A. D. Walker and also flooded the south end of Lime Street near the railroad when workers were unable to close a valve in an oil car on the railroad recently.

The large tank car had been placed on a siding near the Jamestown Canning Co. Workers had previously filled their truck preparatory to distributing the oil on the Jamestown and Xenia Pike, but were unable to close the valve, emptying the balance into the street.

ATTEMPT TO BLOCK GAMBLING AT CONEY ISLAND

COLUMBUS, O., July 16.—Determined to suppress the operation of pari mutual machines at Coney Island Race Track, near Cincinnati, next week, Prosecutor Charles Bell, of Hamilton County returned to Cincinnati today after a conference with Attorney General C. C. Crabbe.

The association named an executive board composed of the following: E. C. Anderson, Blan-

chester; O. Fred H. Tibbits, Columbus; W. T. Huntsman, Toledo; S. A. Lovelace, London, Ky.; W. H. Ponca Logansport, Ind.; Charles F. Porter, Hagerstown, Ind., and E. W. Showalter, Brookville, Ind.

ROUMANIAN TROOPS SENT TO FIGHT ZONE

LONDON, July 16.—The Exchange Telegraph's Vienna correspondent has wired a Bucharest report that a strong force of Roumanian troops have been sent to the Doeroudja zone. The troops are under orders to disperse a band of six hundred Macedonian Comitadis and a number of Bulgarians, the report states.

Reports from Balkan capitals in the past week have indicated disorders on the Bulgar-Roumanian frontier.

Notes of protest have been exchanged between Sofia and Bucharest in which each government charged the other with responsibility for disorder incidents.

One unconfirmed report declared that 120 people had been "massacred" by Roumanians.

ALLEGED BANDITS JAILED AT IRONTON

COLUMBUS, O., July 16.—The state board of control reconvened today and immediately resumed discussion of the proposed purchase of the Apple Creek site (Wayne County) for the new state institution for the feeble minded.

At its last meeting, the board announced it approved the site but estimated the purchase would be held up until a "reasonable sale price" had been advised.

In event this is not done the state will resort to condemnation proceedings.

"Crabbe has promised Bell his fullest co-operation," it was said following the conference.

REPORT GUARDSMEN FIRED UPON YACHT

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A report was filed at Coast Guard Headquarters here today charging that patrol boats had fired on the private yacht of A. Atwater-Kent, radio inventor, while it was enroute from Philadelphia to Bar Harbor, Maine.

The report stated that Kent, his wife and son were on board when the shots were fired. No one was injured.

The boat was searched by the coast guard it was charged.

FIRE DESTROYS PLANT; LOSS $50,000

STRYKER, O., July 16.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the plant of the Stryker Boat, Oak and Lumber Company here today with an estimated loss of $50,000. The fire was discovered by a night watchman but got beyond control before fire fighting equipment could respond to the alarm.

The plant consisted of four large brick structures.

A warehouse adjoining the buildings was saved.

CHILD DROWNS

MARTINS FERRY, O., July 16.—Emil Kapita, 9, drowned in the Ohio River when he stepped into a hole made by a sand dredge.

An 11-year-old companion who attempted to save him, almost lost his life.

Bennett pointed out that all the banks involved were members of a chain and were forced to close because the head bank failed.

The men were wanted on charges of holding up and robbing motorists. The battle climaxed a trap laid by the police.

DECRIES HYSTERIA OVER BANK FAILURE

ATLANTA, Ga., July 16.—Decrying hysteria over failure of sixty-five Georgia and Florida banks this week, T. R. Bennett, Georgia state superintendent of banks today declared appointment of ex-Governor Hugh Dorsey and J. E. Oley, Atlanta banker, as receivers for the Bankers Trust Co. had added confidence to the situation.

Bennett pointed out that all the banks involved were members of a chain and were forced to close because the head bank failed.

The men, Clifford Lewis, 23, and George Tipton, 27, were taken into custody during the night. Two other alleged members of the clique, Gerald Griffin, 24, former Ohio State University student, and Charles Stevens, 23, brother of Albert, who was slain during the battle, were already under arrest.

The men were wanted on charges of holding up and robbing motorists. The battle climaxed a trap laid by the police.

WEATHER TEMPERAMENTAL SAY OBSERVERS

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The weather this year is erratic but not exceptional, U. S. Weather Bureau officials said today.

The weather is temperamental, and never steady along the average, they pointed out, contrasting this year's cool spring east of the Rocky Mountains with records showing the Pacific coast and Great Northwest season was hotter than the average by just about the same number of degrees.

These officials, probably the only exceptions to Mark Twain's remark that "everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," today listed figures showing the season

TWENTY SEVEN INJURED IN WRECK

PASSENGERS AMONG INJURED AS PENNSY TRAIN IS DERAILLED

Two Hurt Seriously—Faulty Rail Is Blamed For Wreck

ALLIANCE, O., July 16.—Twenty seven passengers were injured, two seriously and scores miraculously escaped death when Pennsylvania passenger train No. 106, bound from Chicago to Pittsburgh, was derailed near Summitville, Ohio, today.

M. B. Murphy, 32, Pittsburgh Pullman conductor was brought to a hospital here and Joseph Harris, 25, Detroit, a passenger, was removed to a hospital at East Liverpool. First aid was administered to the other injured on the scene.

First reports received here and at East Liverpool indicated the wreck was of disastrous proportions and a special relief train bearing a corps of doctors and nurses was sent from here to the scene. Ambulances and nurses also were sent from East Liverpool.

A faulty rail apparently caused the crash. As the locomotive plunged through the break it became detached from the train of nine coaches, six of which were derailed.

The jury adjourned late yesterday until Thursday, after Attorney General C. C. Crabbe testified.

Before entering the grand jury room, Crabbe asserted that if the jury fails to act, he will take the issues involved into the federal courts.

EXPECT PHYSICIAN WILL SURRENDER

BOSTON, July 16.—The surrender of Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, wanted on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of Miss Edith Louise Greene, was expected by police here today as a result of information received from a lawyer, representing him.

The south end physician and his wife, Marion A. Walsh, are held jointly responsible for the illegal operation that led to Miss Greene's death and for the dismemberment of her body, which was found in three parcels near a Mattapan cemetery.

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley stated today word had been received from Dr. Walsh's counsel indicating the physician would surrender as soon as arrangements had been made for his release on bail.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN PAGE, hard-working daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. In her hour of need she turns to

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young society man, who in his visits to the inn has always been kind to her. His mother,

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, who sees poverty staring her and her son in the face, induces Landis to propose to Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for doing so. Rosilyn is radiant at the wedding, but as she prepares to go on the wedding journey, she overhears gossip that Landis is marrying her for her money—she hears herself referred to as the Gilded Rose. Landis is still in love with

LYDIA HARBROOK, a heartless beauty who is now in Paris, preparing to marry

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue. Lydia is really fond of Landis and highly incensed when she hears of his marriage, from

RUPERT BRISCOE, an old friend of Landis' who was present at the wedding.

On the night of the wedding Rosilyn, her eyes opened now to the fact that she has been married for her money, tells Landis that theirs will be a marriage in name only. He is secretly relieved at her "common sense" attitude.

Their first breakfast together is a miserable farce, she desparately unhappy—he bored to tears.

Rosilyn comes upon Landis suddenly and finds him gazing forlornly at a picture of Lydia—whom he loves more than ever.

CHAPTER 21

IN WHICH LYDIA SCHEMES

Paris in spring-time! Laughing on the boulevards! Youth! Beauty! Above all, "Romance!" In the big, open squares the tulips—orange or yellow, red or multi-colored-nodded knowing heads. The horse-chestnuts nodded too, in sympathy. Under their delicate green leaves, on little seats just made for gentle dalliance, the lovers sat, perpetual spring-time in their hearts.

Yet for Lydia Harbrook—calculating as no doubt she was—some of the glory of the spring had gone. Briscoe's amazing and disquieting news had robbed her of her peace of mind.

Landis—her Landis—married! To the plain Page child! It was incredible!

Landis—for all his devilry so fastidious, so innately fine—to have sold himself for money!

"And she isn't even a lady!" reflected Lydia, sitting outside a little cafe on the Grand Boulevard and sipping a glass of grenadine. "She'll grate on him a thousand times a day! She'll drive him—"

"Ah yes! where would she drive him?"

Lydia smiled a cruel little smile at her lips framed the syllables: "She'll drive him back to me!"

As though the Page child, even securely married to him, had the ghost of a chance if she—Landis' erstwhile sweetheart—came once more upon the scene!

Yet it was maddening to think that he had taken a leaf out of her own book and sold himself for solid cash, even though such a performance was apart from Landis' defection—one that she had always highly advocated, and was about to do, herself!

"Garcon, bring me an aperitif. Something stronger than  this grenadine." She tapped the edge of the glass with a nervous gesture. Why was Rupert Briscoe late for this appointment? Along with Landis, were old admirers really falling off?

She took out a tiny pocket-mirror and surveyed the image of her own bewitching face. A teeny touch of Il-salve-so! Miss Lydia executed an artistic carmine curve. And just a tuff of powder on that perfect little nose of hers? Oh yes! Rupert appreciated beauty with its proper perquisites.

"Glad eyes"—to use a vulgarism—were liberally bestowed upon the charming "Americaine." Really it was in atrocious taste of Rupert to be late! He was cosmopolitan enough to know how awkward was this waiting in an out-of-doors cafe, especially if one was a pretty woman!

Passing Frenchmen favoured her with bold and ogling glances. A weedy youth at the next table tilted up a glass with a greenish mixture in it, as though to drink his health.

Lydia was just deciding she would leave, when Briscoe came, immaculately dressed as usual, with a white gradin in his button hole, and snowy spats above highly polished shoes.

"Most awfully sorry! Couldn't get away from that darn reception at the Embassy! Forgive me, Lydia!"

He sank into a little green chair beside her, and ordered a brandy for himself.

"Need a bracer?" Most awfully boring crowd, the diplomat."

His companion flung him a keen glance.

"I'll bet five dollars to a nickel, you got off with some fascinating flapper," she announced, deciding to be lenient with the recalcitrant one. "You like 'em young, don't you, Rupert?"

"Not any younger than yourself, my dear."

"Quite neatly said." She leaned over to lift a sort of menu card which had fallen from the little table to the pavement. "Order me an anisette, Rupert. I'm all in and need a tonic."

He gave the order to the garcon without comment, * * save for slightly lifted brows.

"What's the matter? Why the air of criticism?" queried she.

"Nothing, my dear."

"You don't approve of my touching anisette. Is that it?"

He gave a lazy smile.

"It's your own affair. Only, late nights and too strong stimulants are the enemies of beauty aren't they?"

"Good gracious! Saul among the prophets! Or am I misquoting?" She contrived a tinkling laugh, at the same time whisking out that sure friend, the tiny-pocket-mirror.

"Put it away! It isn't necessary. You're the most charming woman I've seen today."

That restored good humor, and they chatted in a desultory fashion.

Lydia was returning to the States. Briscoe took the sudden whim that he would travel with her.

"All because of my fatal fascination?" She flung a smiling challenge at the handsome, rather dissipated-looking man. "Or is the well-known roue seeking some of her peace of mind.

Landis—her Landis—married!

SIGNS FOR MILKMAN INVITE BURGLARS

Persons who leave on vacations hanging out signs "gone until August 1, don't leave milk" are presenting every housebreaker in their city with an engraved invitation to commit burglary, according to Edwin D. Barry, director of safety for Cleveland.

Barry issued a warning to property holders going on vacations to leave their homes securely locked and to notify the police of their contemplated absence. Patrolmen will be assigned to watch most carefully, the closed homes on their beats, he said.

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Your present laxative in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself. —Adv.

DEVELOPMENT

Young Texans in future will learn about 'development' and not about evolution, a message from that state says.

Also comes the news that the text books on evolution which apparently are still to be used in Texas, are to be changed and cut so as to suit the lawmakers.

A state has the right to make what laws its people wish. It can believe or disbelieve in evolution. Except for the fact that the rest of the world laughs, nothing serious is caused by disbelief in evolution.

It seems however that Texas has put up one of the strongest arguments possible for the theory of evolution and for the contention that the scientists are right.

The state will not only permit 'development' to be taught, but strikes out of the text books, not those pages which have been proven inaccurate scientifically, but those pages which are distasteful to certain Texan legislators.

Texas admits the scientific likelihood of the theory of evolution being correct by allowing the subject to be taught, and then has certain facts or theories eliminated.

We are not particularly interested in whether Texas may study evolution or not.

It would seem however that a study of logic is much more necessary in that state.

FRANCE'S DAY

July 14 is France's national holiday. Although the event which it commemorates took place 137 years ago, nothing has dimmed the ardor with which the French undertake its celebration.

The storming of the Bastille more than a century and a quarter ago is the occasion for this holiday. To one who knows little of French history the simple designation given the Bastille as a celebrated state prison in France is perhaps sufficient. But in the long period of its existence the Bastille acquired a name and fame much more significant than the words state prison indicate. More than a hundred years before Columbus discovered "the land of the free" the first stone of this prison was laid. And still by an incredibly strange coincidence the fall of this prison is closely connected with the man who was the first president of the United States.

The story of the Bastille is a long account of terrors and tortures, many of which have no doubt been exaggerated in the course of centuries of repetition. Such was the nature of the methods by which men of all stations of life were put and kept in this prison that the institution came to be regarded by the people as the symbol of oppression. Men must find concrete objects for the things they worship or loathe, and so naturally at the time of the outbreak of the revolution, the Bastille was one of the first objects of attack at the hands of those who thought they were overthrowing autocracy.

In song and story and even in painting, the overthrow of the Bastille has been a famous subject. Even to this day wherever people are sore oppressed, by those who urge them to rise against their oppressors the story of the fall of the Bastille is always a thrilling one. In some manner the destruction of this prison is symbolic of the slogan of the French revolution—"Liberty, Equality and Fraternity."

Significant for Americans, however, is the fact that the key to the great doors of the torn-down building was sent by Thomas Paine to George Washington. The great American rebel, Thomas Paine, made a pretty shrewd guess as to where the symbol of oppression could be best tucked away.

Today's Talk

NANCY HANKS

A nation can only be called great as it lives in a state of honest and reverent appreciation toward that which gave birth to its ideals and its life.

Men and women make a nation great. But without the women, there would be no men. So, after all, Motherhood is the keystone upon which rests the greatness of the world.

Women, not only give of themselves through motherhood, but they carry on through their constant and eternal inspiration all that is good and noble in the life of the manhood of the world.

No man ever does a great thing without the influence of some woman, be that woman mother, wife, sweetheart, sister or friend.

But, so often, greatness—passing by—sleeps to its obligations.

Lowell called Abraham Lincoln "the first American." Then why, in ordinary logic, should not Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln, be called the first Mother of America, as typical of all the mothers who have made America great? How lowly she herself was born! How long and late she labored with her hands and spent her heart and strength in building a boy who was to become the man who was "belong to the ages" as Stanton stated.

The world, even, outside America has done unusual honor to this representative of justice, mercy and love. Highways, memorials, tablets, statues have been placed all over the land Lincoln loved to help people remember the beauty and strength of him. But the mother—Nancy Hanks! Why do so few know her, to whom Lincoln himself once said he owed all that he was or ever hoped to be?

Why is there no bronze or marble statue of Nancy Hanks at the head of the great Lincoln Memorial at Washington? Why is there no permanent representation of her, who gave such a treasure to the world, in all the large cities of America, so that motherhood might be justly and beautifully honored?

Abraham Lincoln couldn't consent to the shooting of boys who slept, even while on duty. Does anyone doubt that at such times the form and face of his own mother—Nancy Hanks—came to him, as when in pain, poverty, and travail, she warmed his own heart and breathed into it the life-blood of immortality?

Just Folks

BY EDGAR A. QUEST

THE STEPMOTHER
How shall it be when we shall meet
Some day upon the Heavenly street
The mother of your children three—
What think you will she say to me?
When first we stand there face to face,
I who have tried to take her place?

"Suppose," said he, "by train and ship
A mother had to take a trip
And was by fate compelled to stay
For several years or more away,
And some good woman through it all
Mothered and watched her children small.

"What would she think if day by day
Her husband's letters came to say
A neighboring woman, kind and fair
Tied ribbons in her children's hair,
Nursed them in sickness and with grace
Was trying hard to take her place?

"Ask any mother how she'd feel
To one who could such love reveal.
Could she a word of censure find
For one who to her babes was kind?
Such service to her helpless brood
Would win undying gratitude.

"And when you meet, oh, have no fear!

SAUCES AND RELISHES
Sweet Corn Relish: Ingredients are: Two-thirds of a cup of chopped raw onion, one-fifth cup of chopped green and red peppers mixed, seven and one-half cups of fresh corn chopped (cut from the cob but not cooked) three and one-half cups of chopped cabbage, two cloves of garlic, one-fourth cup of salt, two and one-half cups of sugar, one-third cup of cider vinegar and one ounce of dry mustard. After putting the onions, peppers, cabbage, corn and garlic through your meat grinder, separately, and measuring, combine these ingredients in a preserving kettle, adding all the other ingredients except the mustard. Simmer forty-five minutes after it comes to the boiling point. Then mix the mustard to a paste with a little extra cold vinegar, and stir this into the relish; let boil ten minutes longer before turning into hot, sterilized glass jars and sealing at once.

HOT CHILE SAUCE: Ingredients are: Ten pounds of red tomatoes, six ounces of Italian red peppers and seeds, one pound of red onions, two pints of brown sugar, five teaspoons of ground allspice, and two tablespoons of salt. Scald the tomatoes and remove skins with the fingers, then cut out the cores and put through the meat grinder with the peeled onions and red peppers (do not discard the seeds, as they make the mixture hot). Turn all ingredients into your preserving kettle and let simmer four hours, before sealing while still hot in glass jars and sealing at once.

CANDIDATE VISITS
XENIA ON FRIDAY

Xenia entertained one of the leading candidates for governor Friday when Secretary of State Thad Brown, of Columbus, stopped here over night to confer with local Republican leaders. Accompanied by former State Senator F. A. Bushey, of South Vienna, Secretary Brown is completing a tour of the Seventh Congressional District.

"I am greatly encouraged by the reception I have received in the Seventh District and feel confident that I will carry a majority of the counties in the district by a substantial plurality," Secretary Brown said. His tour embraces Fayette, Warren, Clinton, Greene, Clark, Champaign, Logan and Union counties.

Secretary Brown indicated confidence in his nomination, declaring that he had just completed a tour of the eastern and southern Ohio counties and found sentiment strong for him in these sections. From Xenia he motored to Urbana stopping at several towns in Greene, Clark and Champaign counties enroute.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

REPRINTED BY REQUEST

"I like you, Mack, but as a friend, I want to say your ties don't blend, your socks are loud and out of date, you eat beef stew and stay out late, your eyes don't match, your legs don't track, your coat don't hang right in the back, you'll pardon me, your bean is wood. I'm telling you for your own good."

I've always liked you as a friend, now please don't think that I'd offend, but you look more like some farm hand, your ears stick out, your brain needs sand, you squeeze your pocket-book too tight, you eat cream cheese by day and night; your teeth need grease, your hair's cut wrong, you wear your coat tails far too long. I hope you'll pardon me old kid, your faculties have hit the skid, there's vacant rooms beneath your hood. I'm saying this for your own good."

You drink home brew from out a can, the mail man comes daily, you read of Hem and Andy Gump and play the ukulele; you live on watermelon rinds and tell the weather by queer signs fast come the day when morning finds you held by Lummie Bailey.

Some worth while things you never read, you only see the funnies, your brains have mostly gone to seed, you dream of piles of monies; sometimes you take a hunting piece and sally forth to shoot some geese, or maybe knock a little grease from out the little bunnies. Your talk is like some high school kid and gives a slight suspicion that what you know is on the skid, you're headed for perdition."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Franklin Parker

GOLDEN TEXT: Certainly I will be with thee. Exodus 3:12.

TIME: Moses was called at the burning bush. (Beecher) B. C. 1499.

PLACE: Near Mount Sinai, where the Israelites, camped after leaving Egypt, and where the law was given to Moses.

INTRODUCTION: Much has occurred since our last lesson, here we find Moses far away in Midian, under the shadows of Mount Horeb.

Eighty years have elapsed since he was presented to Pharaoh's court, to become the son of the king's daughter by adoption. Moses was thoughtful, and did not forget his people, under bondage, after he had attained his high position at the Egyptian court. But rather he kept a watchful eye over them and was interested in their deliverance.

Moses was adopted by the king's daughter, who had smitten a Hebrew. Whereupon he immediately smote the killer and hid his body in the sand. But after a time Pharaoh discovered the crime and Moses had to flee for his life. Moses arrived at Midian, where he was received into the family of a sheik, whose daughter he later married, and adopted a shepherd's life. Here he spent a quiet but most important forty years because he was unconsciously paving the way for the great work to which God would shortly call him. When forty years old he had attained the period of education and was eager to go forth for his people but he was too impulsive and weak to be the leader of this vast nation on its long journey and be able to control them, because he demonstrated that he could not control himself. He needed discipline and this is accomplished only in solitude and quiet. Jesus took thirty years to prepare before he spent three short years in his public ministry. After forty years of education and training, and forty years of meditation and growth in the wilderness, Moses was now at the age of eighty years, was ready for the great cause which God had in store for him.

L. GOD'S CALL TO MOSES: Moses was tending his sheep when

God appealed to him in the shape of a burning bush, and said: "And Jehovah said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people that are in Egypt. Go now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh." "All authority hath been given unto me. Go ye therefore" Matthew 28:18. God plans the work and then he calls on man to carry it out. His wise plans and purposes. God is an ideal organizer and we are His co-workers. All who are at the right work is called of God. Each mission to which He calls us is one of rescue to some of his people to deliver them from some sort of bondage. As merchants, teachers and Christian workers all have our part in God's plan of delivering some one from his or her particular bondage, hunger, ignorance and sin.

2. MOSES COMPLAINS: "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh?" He apparently felt that he was unworthy. Moses underestimated his power and ability where most of us rush to the high positions regardless of our ability and strength. But Moses pressed his objection a little too far because he forgot that God was capable of judging his fitness. He said, "I am not the man, send Aaron, he is the eloquent member of our family." Most of us underestimate our ability to serve God, with but few gifts and meager means we can do much after all for Him. Christ with a few loaves and fish, that the disciples possessed, fed many. Moses was the one man who could deliver Israel.

3. GOD'S PROMISE: "Certainly I will be with thee." Moses opposing Pharaoh was nothing but God with Moses against the heathen ruler in everything. God always supplies the power for the work when He sets one to a task. "Lo, I am with you always," is the promise to you. "Ye shall serve God upon this mountain, was the assurance of His promise. Faith is the assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen, Hebrews 11:1.

4. GOD PRESENT: What credentials should he give the Israelites in his authority? "And God said unto Moses, I am that I am; and he said, thus shall ye say unto the children of Israel, I am hath sent me to you." The name of Jehovah is of the same root and meaning I am. This the Hebrews would recognize for many generations no prophet which come from God to the people and they might have dated God in the present. There is danger of our looking on religion as retrospective. Some think that God has left the world and that we must go back two or three thousand years to find Him, but He is ever present. The realization that God is with us is the vital root of religion. Christ Emmanuel, God with us.

5. A VISION OF FREEDOM, LIBERTY: God outlined his work, first he was to collect the elders and interest them in the plan of deliverance God had in mind. It takes co-operation for us to be successful in God's work. Moses must hold the grand vision of freedom before the people. The gospel delivers us from bondage of man sorts and brings us to the liberty that Christ died that we might possess. When he had won the leaders of his people he was to go with them to Pharaoh and request that he permit them to go three days into the wilderness to sacrifice unto their God, and thus he could not claim that it was political rebellion or secret mutiny but rather an open proposal. Their request produced a religious war between Pharaoh and the Hebrews. We have the same differences in the world today.

6. DIFFICULTIES: A H. E. AD: Moses had been warned that it would not be an easy victory. He did not deceive the people but rather informed them what they must forfeit for God and His purpose in their behalf. The Christian life today is one of hard battles and often lost but in the end, victory and life with God. Christ won over Satan in the wilderness and he will fight for us. The Armor of Christ is the sure weapon against the devil. We must heed our opportunity as did Moses and God will guide us to victory and freedom not only for others but for ourselves also.

CANTON PUBLISHER SHOT TO DEATH

FORMER XENIAN HELD FOR MURDER IN PHILADELPHIA

Frank Thomas, 45, Colored, Arrested In Franklin by Village Marshal—Admits Shooting Last January

Frank Thomas, 45, colored, former Xenian, was arrested in Franklin Thursday night by Marshal Graham of that village and is being held for Philadelphia police who are said to want him on a charge of murder.

Thomas, who made his home in Xenia, at 1133 E. Third St., three or four years, from 1920 to 1923 or 1924, is said to have admitted to Franklin authorities that he shot and killed William Lattimore, colored, brother of his daughter-in-law, in Philadelphia, last January.

He formerly lived in Franklin and Marshal Graham recognized him from his picture on a police circular sent out following the murder. Thomas told Marshal Graham he had skipped to Georgia after the shooting and had lived in a number of states since then. He said he was on his way to Philadelphia when arrested.

The shooting was the culmination of a family quarrel, Thomas told Franklin officers. He said he was making his home in Philadelphia at 1530 Twenty-second St. with his two sons and their wives. During the absence of his sons, he said one daughter-in-law left and returned in company with two men, one of them her brother, whom she instructed to move out the furniture.

Thomas said he did not protest until they were about to move the mattress which he had been using for a bed. When he remonstrated with them he said one of the men struck him on the head.

ATTEMPT TO BLOCK GAMBLING AT CONEY

COLUMBUS, O., July 16—Determined to suppress the operation of pari mutual machines at Coney Island Race Track, near Cincinnati, next week, Prosecutor Charles Bell, of Hamilton County, returned to Cincinnati today after a conference with Attorney General C. C. Crabbé.

Although Bell would not divulge his plans, it was understood he would launch a vigorous war against gambling at Coney Island and that if conditions became unmanageable he would seek through injunction proceedings.

"Crabbé has promised Bell his fullest co-operation," it was said following the conference.

BOARD OF CONTROL DISCUSSING SITE

COLUMBUS, O., July 16—The state board of control reconvened today and immediately resumed discussion of the proposed purchase of the Apple Creek site (Wayne County) for the new state institution for the feeble minded.

At its last meeting, the board announced it approved the site but estimated the purchase would be held up until a "reasonable sale price" had been advised.

In event this is not done the state will resort to condemnation proceedings.

One unconfirmed report declared that 120 people had been "mas-sacred" by Roumanians.

ALLEGED BANDITS JAILED AT IRONTON

IRONTON, O., July 16—Two additional members of the alleged bandit gang which participated in a gun battle with officers near here last week, were under arrest today.

The men, Clifford Lewis, 23, and George Tipton, 27, were taken into custody during the night. Two other alleged members of the clique, Gerald Griffin, 24, former Ohio State University student, and Charles Stevens, 23, brother of Albert, who was slain during the battle, were already under arrest.

The men were wanted on charges of holding up and robbing motorists. The battle climaxed a trap laid by the police.

OIL BOOM HITS JAMESTOWN

Oil has been struck in Jamestown.

Road oil, 4,000 gallons of it, was released into the lawns of Homer Smith and A. D. Walker and also flooded the south end of Limestone St. near the railroad when workmen were unable to close a valve in an oil car on the rail road recently.

The large tank car had been placed on a siding near the Jamestown Cannery Co. Workmen had previously filled their truck preparatory to distributing the oil on the Jamestown and Xenia Pike, but were unable to close the valve, emptying the balance into the street.

ROUMANIAN TROOPS SENT TO FIGHT ZONE

LONDON, July 16.—The Exchange Telegraph's Vienna correspondent has wired a Bucharest report that a strong force of Roumanian troops have been sent to the Doerndjia zone. The troops are under orders to disperse a band of six hundred Macedonian Comitadis and a number of Bulgarians, the report states.

Reports from Balkan capitals in the past week have indicated disorders on the Bulgar-Roumanian frontier.

Notes of protest have been exchanged between Sofia and Bucharest in which each government charged the other with responsibility for disorder incidents.

One unconfirmed report declared that 120 people had been "mas-sacred" by Roumanians.

DECRIES HYSTERIA OVER BANK FAILURE

ATLANTA, Ga., July 16—Decrying hysteria over failure of sixty-five Georgia and Florida banks this week, T. R. Bennett, Georgia state superintendent of banks today declared appointment of ex-Governor Hugh Dorsey and J. E. Oley, Atlanta banker, as receivers for the Bankers' Trust Co., had added confidence to the statement.

Bennett pointed out that all the banks involved were members of a chain and were forced to close because the head bank failed.

The men, Clifford Lewis, 23, and George Tipton, 27, were taken into custody during the night. Two other alleged members of the clique, Gerald Griffin, 24, former Ohio State University student, and Charles Stevens, 23, brother of Albert, who was slain during the battle, were already under arrest.

The men were wanted on charges of holding up and robbing motorists. The battle climaxed a trap laid by the police.

TWENTY SEVEN INJURED IN WRECK

PASSENGERS AMONG INJURED AS PENNSY TRAIN IS DERAILLED

Two Hurt Seriously—Faulty Rail Is Blamed For Wreck

ALLIANCE, O., July 16.—Twenty seven passengers were injured, two seriously and scores miraculously escaped death when Pennsylvania passenger train No. 106, bound from Chicago to Pittsburgh, was derailed near Summitville, Ohio, today.

M. B. Murphy, 32, Pittsburgh Pullman conductor was brought to a hospital here and Joseph Harris, 25, Detroit, a passenger, was removed to a hospital at East Liverpool. First aid was administered to the other injured on the scene.

First reports received here and at East Liverpool indicated the wreck was of disastrous proportions and a special relief train bearing a corps of doctors and nurses was sent from here to the scene. Ambulances and nurses also were sent from East Liverpool.

A faulty rail apparently caused the crash. As the locomotive plunged through the break it became detached from the train of nine coaches, six of which were derailed.

The jury adjourned late yesterday until Thursday, after Attorney General C. C. Crabbé testified. Before entering the grand jury room, Crabbé asserted that if the jury fails to act, he will take the issues involved into the federal courts.

In addition to the land owners other witnesses will be called, County Prosecutor Edgar G. Martin announced.

Another witness yesterday was State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy, who charged those seeking to profit through acquisition of the New London site, first set the sales price at $52,000, but later reduced it to $30,000."

The charges, originally brought by Crabbé and Tracy, involve State Welfare Director John E. Harper, J. B. Youngblood, his consulting engineer and John T. Hogan, department agriculturist.

BOSTON, July 16.—The surrender of Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, wanted on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of Miss Edith Louise Greene, was expected by police here today as a result of information received from a lawyer, representing him.

The south end physician and his wife, Marion A. Walsh, are held jointly responsible for the illegal operation that led to Miss Greene's death and for the dismemberment of her body, which was found in three parcels near a Mattapan cemetery Tuesday.

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley stated today word had been received from Dr. Walsh's counsel indicating the physician would surrender as soon as arrangements had been made for his release on bail.

POKER GAME ENDS AFTER FATALITY

IRONTON, O., July 16—An argument during a poker game may cost the life of William Francis, 42, of Coal Grove. Francis was shot and wounded by John Day, 41, according to police when the latter refused to permit him to quit playing during a poker game.

Francis was winner $25 at the time, officers said. The shooting occurred at Day's River camp. Day was arrested.

REPORT GUARDSMEN FIRED UPON YACHT

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A report was filed at Coast Guard Headquarters here today charging that patrol boats had fired on the private yacht of A. Atwater-Kent, radio inventor, while it was enroute from Philadelphia to Bar Harbor, Maine.

The report stated that Kent, his wife and son were on board when the shots were fired. No one was injured.

The boat was searched by the coast guard it was charged.

STRYKES, O., July 16—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the plant of the Stryker Boat, Car and Lumber Company here today with an estimated loss of $50,000. The blaze left sixty men jobless.

The fire was discovered by a night watchman but got beyond control before fire fighting equipment could respond to the alarm.

The plant consisted of four frame brick structures. A warehouse adjoining the buildings was saved.

CHILD DROWNS

MARTINS FERRY, O., July 16—Emil Kapita, 9, drowned in the Ohio River when he stepped into a hole made by a sand dredge. An 11-year-old companion who attempted to save him, almost lost his life.

Just How Blast Started

This hose, attached to a hydrant at the centre of the arsenal blast at Lake Denmark, N.J., was evidence that the explosion was started by a fire, caused by lightning, instead of that lightning ignited explosives direct. Marines were believed to have been fighting the fire when the blast came.

Judge Wright Takes Cases Under Advisement After Hearing On Friday—Alleged Ring Members

BULLETIN
Pleading guilty to transportation, Fred Love was fined $1,000 and costs. F. C. Arneedy, $1,000 and costs for possession, and Jack Price $500 and costs upon his conviction for possession of liquor. Love, resisted the second charge of possession, will have to face this charge later. He was making arrangements for bond Friday.

The fines were inflicted by Judge Wright at the conclusion of the hearings Friday afternoon.

The court instructed that Love's automobile be confiscated and advertised by Sheriff Morris Sharp for sale.

Hearings of charges of transportation and possession of liquor against Fred Love, 35, Dayton, former Greene Countian, F. C. Arneedy, alleged Chicago attorney, and Jack Price, Chicago, were continued before Probate Judge S. C. Wright, Friday afternoon. Trials were begun Friday morning.

Love withdrew his previous plea of not guilty to transportation of liquor and substituted a guilty plea, but resisted the charge of possession.

Arneedy also changed his plea of not guilty to possession of liquor to guilty while Price maintained his original stand of not guilty to the blank future of life in prison.

The Scott Brothers—Russell and Robert—today faced each other in adjoining cells.

No Mention Made Of Crime When Pair Converse

CHICAGO, July 16—One visiting the gallows on which he is to die, the other staring into the blank future of life in prison; the Scott Brothers—Russell and Robert—today faced each other in adjoining cells.

They met yesterday for the first time since one of them shot and killed Joseph Maurer. That was more than two years ago. They shook hands casually that night and started out to defeat justice, winner.

They visited for ten minutes. Neither mentioned the murder. Russell said nothing to Robert about the problem which came up during the trial when Robert let Russell take the rap alone." He didn't ask Robert why the latter stayed in hiding despite numerous broadcastings of Russell for him to "come in" and "tell the real story," which Russell said would make Robert the killer.

They extended to each other in two. Last night they shook hands again, casually, with Justice the First greeting the brothers years was merely an informal "hello Bob" which followed Robert's "hello Rus."

DETROITER WINS BALLOON RACE; LANDS AT JENNINGS, FLORIDA

CHICAGO, July 16—The gas bags of 35,000 cubic feet gas dislodged. The Goodyear IV, the third bag, yesterday at Jennings, Fla., after taking the air Tuesday at Chicago, was declared the winner of the Elks balloon race today.

Going approximately 854 miles, the Delco won the race by coming to the ground at Portland, Ark. The drama was repeated the next morning in real life when Miss Edna Honeywell, Captain Honeywell's daughter, stepped out of her father's balloon on the outskirts of town. Miss Honeywell, like the girls in the play, wore knick-knacks and seemed pleased with her experience.

SALESMAN KILLED

CINCINNATI, July 16—Murder was suspected today in the death of F. B. Campbell, 45, Cambridge City, Ind., salesman who was found dead at the bottom of a hill near here, surrounded by the wreckage of his automobile.

Allegedly Campbell lost control of his machine and plunged down the hill, authorities said.

His predictions are made upon the basis of present uncomfortable conditions, because of

FURTHER EVIDENCE TANGLES OPERATOR IN DISAPPEARANCE

Witness Identifies Mrs. McPherson As Woman He Saw

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 16.—Further evidence linking Kenneth H. Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator, with the disappearance and re-appearance of Almee Semple McPherson, will be presented when the Los Angeles County grand jury reconvenes next Tuesday.

Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan, declared today he would produce witnesses who saw the radio man and Mrs. McPherson together in Salinas, Calif., several days after the evangelist's reported drowning at Venice.

Unexpected and sensational evidence at the grand jury session late yesterday caused District Attorney Asa Keyes to prolong the investigation.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 16.—Almee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles, evangelist, has been positively identified by C. A. Pape, of Tucson, Ariz., as the woman he saw in front of the Club Internationale, Agua Prieta, Mexico, on June 18, five days before she appeared there and announced she had just escaped from a gang of kidnappers.

Pape's testimony, given before the grand jury at a time when the investigation seemed about to collapse due to lack of evidence, created a sensation.

District Attorney Asa Keyes hurriedly summoned Mrs. McPherson from Angelus Temple.

"That's her!" Pape cried as she entered the room. "That's the woman I saw with another woman and two men in Agua Prieta."

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN PAGE, hard-working daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. In her hour of need she turns to

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young society man, who in his visits to the inn has always been kind to her. His mother,

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, who sees poverty staring her and her son in the face, induces Landis to propose to Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for doing so. Rosilyn is radiant at the wedding, but as she prepares to go on the wedding journey, she overhears gossip that Landis is marrying her for her money—she hears herself referred to as the Gilded Rose. Landis is still in love with Lydia.

LYDIA HARBROOK, a heartless beauty who is now in Paris, preparing to marry

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue. Lydia is really fond of Landis and highly incensed when she hears of his marriage, from

RUPERT BRISCOE, an old friend of Landis' who was present at the wedding.

On the night of the wedding Rosilyn, her eyes opened now to the fact that she has been married for her money, tells Landis that theirs will be a marriage in name only. He is secretly relieved at her "common sense" attitude.

Their first breakfast together is a miserable farce, she desperately unhappy—he bored to tears.

Rosilyn comes upon Landis suddenly and finds him gazing forlornly at a picture of Lydia whom he loves more than ever.

CHAPTER 21

IN WHICH LYDIA SCHEMES

Paris in spring-time! Laughter on the boulevards! Youth! Beauty! Above all, Romance!

In the big, open squares the tulips—orange or yellow, red or multi-colored nodded knowing heads. The horse-chestnuts nodded too, in sympathy. Under their delicate green leaves, on little seats just made for gentle dalliance, the lovers sat, perpetual spring-time in their hearts.

Yet for Lydia Harbrook—calculating as no doubt she was—some of the glory of the spring had gone. Briscoe's amazing and disquieting news had robbed her of her peace of mind.

Landis—her Landis—married! To the plain Page child!

It was incredible!

Landis—for all his devilry so fastidious, so innately fine—to have sold himself for money!

"And she isn't even a lady!" reflected Lydia, sitting outside a little cafe on the Grand Boulevard and sipping a glass of grenadine. "She'll drive on him a thousand times a day! She'll drive him—"

"Ah yes! where would she drive him?"

Lydia smiled a cruel little smile at her lips framed the syllables: "She'll drive him back to me!"

As though the Page child, even securely married to him, had the ghost of a chance if she—Landis' erstwhile sweetheart—came once more upon the scene!

Yet it was maddening to think that he had taken a leaf out of her own book and sold himself for solid cash, even though such a performance was—apart from Landis' defection—one that she had always highly advocated, and was about to do, herself!

"Garcon, bring me an appetit. Something stronger than this grenadine." She tapped the edge of the glass with a nervous gesture. Why was Rupert Briscoe late for this appointment? Along with Landis, were old admirers really falling off?

She took out a tiny pocket-mirror and surveyed the image of her own bewitching face. A teeny touch of lip-salve-so! Miss Lydia executed an artful carmine curve. And just a fluff of powder on that perfect little nose of hers? Oh yes! Rupert appreciated beau-

SIGNS FOR MILKMAN INVITE BURGLARS

Persons who leave on vacations hanging out signs "gone until August 1, don't leave milk" are presenting every housebreaker in their city with an engraved invitation to commit burglary, according to Edwin D. Barry, director of safety for Cleveland.

Barry issued a warning to property holders going on vacation to leave their homes securely locked and to notify the police of their contemplated absence. Patrolmen will be assigned to watch most carefully the closed homes on their beats, he said.

"None of my arrows ever hit the mark with you." He gave his lazy laugh. "Wish I could discover the Achilles spot!"

"My heel upon your head! You'd hate me!"

DEVELOPMENT

Young Texans in future will learn about 'development' and not about evolution, a message from that state says.

Also comes the news that the text books on evolution which apparently are still to be used in Texas, are to be changed and cut so as to suit the lawmakers.

A state has the right to make what laws its people wish it can believe or disbelieve in evolution. Except for the fact that the rest of the world laughs, nothing serious is caused by a disbelief in evolution.

It seems however that Texas has put up one of the strongest arguments possible for the theory of evolution and for the contention that the scientists are right.

The state will not only permit 'development' to be taught, but strikes out of the text books, not those pages which have been proven inaccurate scientifically, but those pages which are distasteful to certain Texan legislators.

Texas admits the scientific likelihood of the theory of evolution being correct by allowing the subject to be taught, and then has certain facts or theories eliminated.

We are not particularly interested in whether Texas may study evolution or not.

It would seem however that a study of logic is much more necessary in that state.

FRANCE'S DAY

July 14 is France's national holiday. Although the event which it commemorates took place 137 years ago, nothing has dimmed the ardor with which the French undertake its celebration.

The storming of the Bastille more than a century and a quarter ago is the occasion for this holiday. To one who knows little of French history the simple designation given the Bastille as a celebrated state prison in France is perhaps sufficient. But in the long period of its existence the Bastille acquired a name and fame much more significant than the words state prison indicate. More than a hundred years before Columbus discovered "the land of the free" the first stone of this prison was laid. And still by an incredibly strange coincidence the fall of this prison is closely connected with the man who was the first president of the United States.

The story of the Bastille is a long account of terrors and tortures, many of which have no doubt been exaggerated in the course of centuries of repetition. Such was the nature of the methods by which men of all stations of life were put and kept in this prison that the institution came to be regarded by the people as the symbol of oppression. Men must find concrete objects for the things they worship or loathe, and so naturally at the time of the outbreak of the revolution, the Bastille was one of the first objects of attack at the hands of those who thought they were overthrowing autocracy.

In song and story and even in painting, the overthrow of the Bastille has been a famous subject. Even to this day wherever people are sore oppressed, by those who urge them to rise against their oppressors the story of the fall of the Bastille is always a thrilling one. In some manner the destruction of this prison is symbolic of the slogan of the French revolution—"Liberty, Equality and Fraternity."

Significant for Americans, however, is the fact that the key to the great doors of the torn-down building was sent by Thomas Paine to George Washington. The great American rebel, Thomas Paine, made a pretty shrewd guess as to where the symbol of oppression could be best tucked away.

Today's Talk

NANCY HANKS

A nation can only be called great as it lives in a state of honest and reverent appreciation toward that which gave birth to its ideals and its life.

Men and women make a nation great. But without the women, there would be no men. So, after all, Motherhood is the keystone upon which rests the greatness of the world.

Women, not only give of themselves through motherhood, but they carry on through their constant and eternal inspiration all that is good and noble in the life of the manhood of the world.

No man ever does a great thing without the influence of some woman, be that woman mother, wife, sweetheart, sister or friend.

But, so often, greatness—passing by—sleeps to its obligations.

Lowell called Abraham Lincoln "the first American." Then why, in ordinary logic, should not Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln, be called the first Mother of America, as typical of all the mothers who have made America great? How lowly she herself was born. How long and late she labored with her hands and spent her heart and strength in building a boy who was to become the man who was "belong to the ages" as Stanton stated.

The world, even, outside America has done unusual honor to this representative of justice, mercy and love. Highways, memorials, tablets, statues have been placed all over the land Lincoln loved to help people remember the beauty and strength of him. But the mother—Nancy Hanks! Why do we few know her, to whom Lincoln himself once said he owed all that he was or ever hoped to be?

Why is there no bronze or marble statue of Nancy Hanks at the head of the great Lincoln Memorial at Washington? Why is there no permanent representation of her, who gave such a treasure to the world, in all the large cities of America, so that motherhood might be justly and beautifully honored?

Abraham Lincoln couldn't consent to the shooting of boys who slept, even while on duty. Does anyone doubt that at such times the form and face of his own mother—Nancy Hanks—came to him, as when in pain, poverty, and travail, she warmed his own heart and breathed into it the life-blood of immortality?

Mothered and watched her children small.

"What would she think if day by day
Her husband's letters came to say
A neighboring woman, kind and fair
Tied ribbons in her children's hair,

Nursed them in sickness and with grace
Was trying hard to take her place?

"Ask any mother how she'd feel

Could she a word of censure find

SIDELIGHTS ON Greene County History

"SLEEPY TOM," KING OF PACERS

Among the factors that have made Green County famous must be mentioned "Sleepy Tom" one of the greatest pacers, when his chances are considered the world has ever seen.

He was foaled in the hotel stable in 1866. He was a stoutly bred horse sired by "Tom Ralph" and ne by "Pocoontas." "Tom's" dam was sired by "Sam Hazard."

"Tom" was an unpromising colt, both in gait and appearance. There was nothing about him to indicate the greatness he was later to achieve on the track.

During his early childhood and after he was broken, he led the life of a vagabond and was raced about the streets of Bellbrook as a common "plug."

His dam was a natural pacer and "Tom" also showed indications of that gait, which was more obvious as he grew older. Hence his owner, Isaac Dingler, began training him, but with only indifferent success. Along with his failure, the seeming end of "Tom's" career was sealed when he became stone blind, probably as a result of the strenuous work he had done in training. He was then withdrawn from the track as worthless and was repeatedly sold and traded, at one time changing hands in consideration for thirty dollars and a bottle of poor whiskey. Finally he became an inmate of a livery stable in Xenia.

Later Stephen Phillips, who trained trotters and pacers, became interested in him. "Tom's" first victory came in a race between the Gazette and Enquirer in bringing Cincinnati Sunday newspapers to Xenia from Dayton. The Enquirer had hired the blind pacer.

Phillips was immediately interested and bought the chestnut horse for $150. Although his friends poked fun at his pacer, Phillips didn't mind and put him in training.

In a practice performance, Tom made a mile in about 2:30. Frank T. Stark, a friend, witnessed the tryout and advised Phillips to try for purses. Phillips took the advice and "Tom" whose name was changed to "Sleepy Tom" made his debut with the best at Chicago in 1879. He won the third, fourth and fifth mile heats in 2:16 1/2, 2:16 and 2:12 1/4 for a purse of $15,000 against "Matte Hunter," "Rowdy Boy" and "Lucy," considered the greatest pacers of that year.

In the final heat he set a world's record for any gait and his name became a household word.

But this grand old pacer was doomed for a miserable end. After he had lowered the world's record he was sold for $10,000. When he became too old to be of any value as a race horse, he drifted from one owner to another until he finally perished in a burning stable out west.

"I like you, Mack, but as a friend, I want to say your ties don't blend, your socks are loud and out of date, you eat beef stew and stay out late, your eyes don't match, your legs don't track, your coat don't hang right in the back, you'll pardon me, your bean is wood. I'm telling you for your own good."

I've always liked you as a friend, now please don't think that I offend, but you look more like some farm hand, your ears stick out, your brain needs sand, you squeeze your pocket-book too tight, you eat cream cheese by day and night; your teeth need grease, your hair's cut wrong, you wear your coat tails far too long, I hope you'll pardon me old kid, your faculties have hit the skid, there's vacant rooms beneath your hood. I'm saying this for your own good.

You drink home brew from out a can, the mail man comes daily, you read of Hem and Andy Gump and play the ukulele; you live on watermelon rinds and tell the weather by queer signs fast come the day when morning finds you held by Lummie Bailey.

Some worth while things you never read, you only see the funnies, your brains have mostly gone to seed, you dream of piles of monies; sometimes you take a hunting piece and sally forth to shoot some geese, or maybe knock a little grease from out the little bunnies. Your talk is like some high school kid and gives a slight suspicion that what you know is on the skid, you're headed for perdition.

I'd like to grab you by the tie and stick my finger in your eye, and bite your neck and pull your hair and see you jump up in the air, and kick you underneath the chin, and mash your nose and scratch your shin; and every time a blow'd go home, and knock some scalp from off your dome, I'd bellow out as best I could "I'm doing this for your own good."

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Sunday School Lessons

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Franklin Parker
GOLDEN TEXT: Certainly I will be with thee. Exodus 3:12.

TIME: Moses was called at the burning bush, (Beecher) B. C. 1499.

PLACE: Near Mount Sinai, where the Israelites, camped after leaving Egypt, and where the law was given to Moses.

INTRODUCTION: Much has occurred since our last lesson, here we find Moses far away in Midian, under the shadows of Mount Horeb. Eighty years have elapsed since he was presented to Pharaoh's court, to become the son of the king's daughter by adoption. Moses was thoughtful, and did not forget his people, under bondage, after he had attained his high position at the Egyptian court. But rather he kept a watchful eye over them and was interested in their deliverance. One day while out looking over the conditions surrounding his people he discovered an Egyptian who had smitten a Hebrew. Whereupon he immediately smote the killer and hid his body in the sand. But after a time Pharaoh discovered the crime and Moses had to flee for his life. Moses arrived at Midian, where he was received into the family of a sheik, whose daughter he later married, and adopted a shepherd's life. Here he spent a quiet but most important forty years because he was unconsciously paving the way for the great work to which God would shortly call him. When forty years old he had attained the period of education and was eager to go forth for his people but he was too impulsive and weak to be the leader of this vast nation on its long journey and be able to control them, because he demonstrated that he could not control himself. He needed discipline and this is accomplished only in solitude and quiet. Jesus took thirty years to prepare before he spent three short years in his public ministry. After forty years of education and training, and forty years of meditation and growth in the wilderness, Moses was now at the age of eighty years, was ready for the great cause which God had in store for him.

1. GOD'S CALL TO MOSES: Moses was tending his sheep when

God appealed to him in the shape of a burning bush, and said: "And Jehovah said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people that are in Egypt. Go now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh." All authority hath been given unto me. Go ye therefore" Matthew 28:18. God plans the work and then he calls on man to carry forth His wise plans and purposes. God is an ideal organizer and we are His co-workers. All who are at the right work is called of God. Each mission to which He calls us is one of rescue to some of his people to deliver them from some sort of bondage. As merchants, teachers and Christian workers all have our part in God's plan of delivering some one from his or her particular bondage, hunger, ignorance and sin.

2. MOSES COMPLAINS: "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh?" He apparently felt that he was unworthy. Moses underestimated his power and ability where most of us rush to the high positions regardless of our ability and strength. But Moses pressed his objection a little too far because he forgot that God was capable of judging his fitness. He said, "I am not the man, send Aaron, he is the eloquent member of our family." Most of us underestimate our ability to serve God, with but few gifts and meager means we can do much after all for Him. Christ with a few loaves and fish, that the disciples possessed, fed many. Moses was the one man who could deliver Israel.

3. GOD'S PROMISE: "Certainly I will be with thee." Moses opposing Pharaoh was nothing but God with Moses against the heathen ruler in everything. God always supplies the power for the work when He sets one to a task. "Lo, I am with you always," is the promise to you. "Ye shall serve God upon this mountain, was the assurance of His promise. Faith is the assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen. Hebrews 11:1.

4. GOD PRESENT: What credentials should he give the Israelites in his authority? "And God said unto Moses, I am that I am; and he said, thus shall ye say unto the children of Israel, I am hath sent me to you." The name of Jehovah is of the same root and meaning I am. Thus the Hebrews would recognize for many generations no prophet which come from God to the people and they might have dated God in the present. There is danger of our looking on religion as retrospective. Some think that God has left the world and that we must go back two or three thousand years to find Him, but He is ever present. The realization that God is with us is the vital root of religion. Christ Emmanuel, God with us.

5. A VISION OF FREEDOM LIBERTY: God outlined his work, first he was to collect the elders and interest them in the plan of deliverance God had in mind. It takes co-operation for us to be successful in God's work. Moses must hold the grand vision of freedom before the people. The gospel delivers us from bondage of man sorts and brings us to the liberty that Christ died that we might possess. When he had won the elders of his people he was to go with them to Pharaoh and request that he permit them to go three days into the wilderness to sacrifice unto their God, and thus he could not claim that it was a political rebellion or secret mutiny but rather an open proposal. Their request produced a religious war between Pharaoh and the Hebrews. We have the same differences in the world today.

6. DIFFICULTIES AHEAD: Moses had been warned that it would not be an easy victory. He did not deceive the people but rather informed them what they must forbear for God and His purpose in their behalf. The Christian life today is one of hard battles and often loss but in the end, victory and life with God. Christ won over Satan in the wilderness and he will fight for us. The Armor of Christ is the sure weapon against the devil. We must heed our opportunity as did Moses and God will guide us to victory and freedom not only on such occasions as Christmas, Easter and Holy Week.
